J. N. F. To Ask For Money To Buy Arab Holdings

The Jewish National Fund, the official agency of the World Zionist Organization for the purchase of land in Israel, has been designated by a special Act of the Knesseth, Israel's Parliament, as the principal body authorized to purchase the land holdings of the Arabs who fled the country during the recent Arab-Jewish hostilities, as well as the property belonging to enemy Germans. Under the bill just passed, the Jewish National Fund will be enabled to acquire title to tracts of land constituting the bulk of the country's entire area, including entire towns and villages. Not more than 100,000 dunams of urban property may, according to the provisions of the bill, be sold to private buyers. The action of the Knesseth puts an end to the current talk about Israel's plans to seize the Arab land without due compensation.

Israeli sources in New York said that while the State, by virtue of its sovereign authority, may claim any part of available land for itself, the Jewish National Fund's land acquisition program stands the best chance of being tremendously enhanced by the bill just passed, inasmuch as the Jewish National Fund is best equipped to make the necessary outlay required for the land purchase. It is estimated that the sum of about fifty million dollars will be required, if the JNF is to carry out the initial phase of the new land acquisition policy as authorized by the Act of the Knesseth.

In New York a Jewish National Fund spokesman, commenting on the action of the Knesseth, said it "pointed to the role which the Jewish National Fund is called upon to play in the State of Israel [illegible] to receive the large influx of immigrants." The Jews of America in view of the additional tasks that have been delegated to the Jewish National Fund by the Israel Government, will be called upon to redouble their efforts in behalf of the Jewish National Fund. According to advices from Jerusalem, the sums which the Jewish National Fund pays for the Arab-held land will be deposited with Israel's State Treasury to be applied, at some later stage in the negotiations with the Arabs, to a compensation fund agreed upon by Israel and the Arab States.

A. J. C. Charges Quotas Reduce Student Group

Anti-Jewish "quota" systems have resulted in a 50 per cent decline in the last twenty years in the number of Jews enrolled in United States medical schools, a report of the American Jewish Congress charged in New York.

The report, compiled by the group's commission on law and social action, said:

"A survey of the graduates of four medical schools in Philadelphia—the University of Pennsylvania and Temple University Medical Schools and Jefferson and Hahnemann Medical Colleges — demonstrated that the percentage of Jewish graduates has already declined since 1936.

"In that year 21.5 per cent of the graduates of these schools were Jewish, but from 1937 to 1949, these schools graduated student bodies which were only 16.8 per cent Jewish, and from 1942 to 1946, not more than 10.3 per cent of their graduates were Jews."

The report said this and other statistical evidence gathered over the country showed that the enrollment of Jewish medical students had declined 50 per cent in twenty years.

"It has become obvious during the last fifteen years that this marked differential between the treatment of Jewish and non-Jewish applicants by medical school admission committees throughout the country is due to 'quota thinking,'" the report asserted.

"With the number of applicants increasing approximately fourteen times between 1920 and 1950, while the number of available places remained constant, 'rough quotas' became the rule of most of the admissions committees. As a result, the number of Jews admitted to [illegible] qualification of the [illegible] applicants."

Medical school applicants, the report said, frequently are asked their mother's maiden name, their "racial lineage" and their "ancestry." It was found however, that in recent years, many medical schools have removed blatantly discriminatory questions from their application blanks.

Israeli Four-Year Plan Will Expand Land

A four-year plan for the expansion of Israel's economic structure, which calls for the development of 1,250,000 acres of land to meet the growing requirements of food consumption because of the record influx of newcomers, was reported by the United Palestine Appeal in New York.

The plan was contained in a report submitted by Dr. George Stefansky, director of research, to Magistrate Morris Rothenberg, national chairman of the Appeal. Dr. Stefansky, who returned from Israel, pointed out in his report that the four-year plan was initiated by Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion and undertaken by Israel's Department of Economic Research.

A major aspect of the plan calls for the liquidation of the refugee camps, which now have about 100,000 newcomers "living in dire circumstances." This can be accomplished only by funds raised in this country by the United Jewish Appeal, of which the United Palestine Appeal is the chief beneficiary.

The report points out that Israel's agricultural production will increase from approximately $35,000,000 this year to $272,000,000 in 1963. It adds that to carry out the agricultural development plan an investment capital of approximately $200,000,000 will be needed, of which $80,000,000 will have to be covered in foreign currency.

It is expected, the report said, that Israel's population will increase by 800,000 in the next four years, and that during that period a minimum of about 20 per cent of the total population will be integrated into agriculture.

Bequeaths Famous Violins

Felix E. Kahn, retired banker, former director of the Paramount Pictures Corporation, and a younger brother of the late Otto H. Kahn, former senior member of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., bankers, of New York died at his summer home, Kneisel Hall, in Blue Hill, Me. He was 75 years old.

Born in Mannheim, Germany, Mr. Kahn, in the earlier part of his career, was connected with banking houses in Germany and England. He came to the U. S. in 1904, and until 1912 continued active in banking. He became an American citizen in 1909. He was on the Paramount board for several years, until 1929.

Well known as an amateur violinist, and as a collector of rare musical instruments, Mr. Kahn at one time owned, among other famous violins, the former Paganini Stradivarius of 1727, the Lady

Saved 200,000 As Volunteer J. D. C. Aide

Saly Mayer, sixty-seven, a Swiss lace manufacturer credited with saving over 200,000 Hungarian Jews from German death camps by outbluffing Nazi officials during World War II, died at St. Moritz, Switzerland, according to word received in New York by the Joint Distribution Committee.

Mr. Mayer served ten years as director of Swiss operations for the J. D. C., international Jewish relief agency. He carried out his feat in 1944, when the Nazi empire was crumbling and desperate means were tried to stave off defeat.

A proposal was put before Mr. Mayer by Kurt Brecher, of the Hungarian S. S. corps, that J.D.C. put up 10,000 trucks and vast stores of supplies as a ransom for 200,000 Hungarian Jews. Last survivors of Hungary's Jewish community, they were destined otherwise for the notorious Auschwitz concentration camp, Brecher told Mr. Mayer, reports the New York Herald Tribune.

Mr. Mayer reported the grim bargain to J. D. C. headquarters in New York, which turned the information over to the United States War Refugee Board. Mr. Mayer was advised that J. D. C., as an American organization, could do nothing to aid the enemy, but he was urged to do all he could to stall the Nazis.

The official War Refugee Board report issued in September, 1945, noted that a series of negotiations followed, in which Mr. Mayer employed "every imaginary dilatory tactic" and kept American officials posted. The talks were still going on when the war in Europe ended with Germany's capitulation. The 200,000 Jews were ushered [illegible] Mayer managed to save an additional 1,700 Jews who were destined for the Bergen-Belsen camp. Telling Brecher that he needed proof that the Nazis had power to save Jews destined for death camps, he demanded that they be brought to Switzerland instead. The Nazis complied.

Brecher then demanded that Mr. Mayer prove that he could

Score Defence Agencies As Weak In Chicago Tribune Attack

One of the Jewish civic defense agencies involved in the Chicago Tribune "Jewish Government" incident defended the agencies' position in the much-criticized negotiations.

The Chicago division of the American Jewish Congress issued the first statement in the case since the daily newspaper's apology was disclosed.

The Congress divison had joined with the local branches of the American Jewish Committee, the Anti-Defamation League of Bnai Brith and the Jewish Labor Committee to call the Tribune to account for its front page story on May 29. The story asserted that Henry Morgenthau, Jr., Sen. Herbert Lehman, and Supreme Court Justice Felix Frankfurter constituted a secret Jewish Government in Washington.

The result of the talks was a letter from J. Loy Maloney, managing editor of the Tribune, strongly denying any anti-Semitic intent. His letter was to have been published, along with a protest from the Jewish groups, in the Tribune. The Tribune refused to print either letter. When the fact became known, widespread protests came from all sections of the American Jewish community, reports the Jewish Post of Indianapolis, Indiana.

One specific development was a meeting of Chicago rabbis and laymen, who addressed a letter of protest to the civic defense agencies. The Chicago Sentinel, local Anglo-Jewish weekly, reported that speakers at the meeting "hammered home the point that the reason for the failure to secure an apology from the Tribune was due to the fact that the community itself had never been consulted throughout the month-long negotiations."

[illegible] A. B. Abra[illegible] work with lay leaders on the formation of a Chicago Jewish Community Council as an over-all defense body. The letter to the agencies was prepared by Rabbis S. Z. Fineberg, Abramowitz, and Jacob Ott.

The letter said that those attending the meeting had "the feeling that the Jewish representatives were placed on the defensive and did not make the demands which they rightfully should have made from the Tribune for the gross and flagrant attack on the integrity of the Jewish people." The Congress statement apparently was a reply to the letter, although it was sent out as a news release, signed by Rabbi Morton Berman, president of the division.

Rabbi Berman said that the objectives of the action of the four agencies had been to prevent "any repetition of this kind of political use of anti-Semitism" and "to obtain a retraction, if possible, from the Tribune."

"Contrary to the innuendoes appearing in the Sentinel magazine, the Congress and the other organizations from the beginning sought a public disposition of the matter," Rabbi Berman said. He disclosed that the four agencies had decided that "a single article did not warrant and would not support a major attack by the Jewish community."

The Congress release reprinted the texts of the letters exchanged with Maloney, which previously had been released by the National Community Relations Advisory Council. The NCRAC is the national coordinating body for U. S. Jewish civic defense, and the four Chicago branches cleared their negotiations with the Tribune through NCRAC.

Rabbi Berman called the statement that the four agencies had not consulted nor represented the Chicago Jewish community a "distortion." "The Chicago branches of the four agencies receive all their funds from the Chicago Jewish community; they are governed by Chicagoans elected by large Chicago memberships, and their actions in this matter were approved by their governing bodies," he said.

"Unless [illegible] matter [illegible] can do so, and we have anarchy," he asserted. Presumably speaking for all the agencies, Rabbi Berman said "we welcome the expression by any individual or any leader in any segment of the Jewish community of opinions which disagree with or criticize our actions. We ask that they be expressed within the framework of the com-

JEWS ARE VICTIMS OF HOODLUMS IN BOSTON

Jewish persons involved in anti-Semitic attacks, in Boston, Mass., were urged to notify police immediately to aid capture of the culprits. The plea was made by the Jewish Community Council and the Anti-Defamation League of Bnai Brith. It was based on a series of incidents in which assailants were promptly punished because police had the chance to make quick arrests.

Robert E. Segal, JCC executive director, said that when authorities were notified promptly, arrests and court hearings followed. When police were not notified, the assailants escaped. An example cited was the case of Arthur Cohen of Roxbury, who called police immediately. A group of Jamaica Plain youths who had assaulted him were seized and held for trial in Dorchester district court.

All five were found guilty and ordered to pay all of Cohen's medical expenses. The court withheld other punishment but placed the hoodlums under one year's probation. The case of the three children of Rabbi Mordecai Savitsky was cited as the opposite. The three children were attacked returning from the Franklin Park Zoo but police were not notified until eight hours after the incident occurred and were unable to track down the assailants.

Soldier Gets U. S. Honor After Death

A posthumous holder of the Distinguished Service Cross, second highest American award for gallantry in combat, became the second American Jew to receive the Congressional Medal of Honor for service in World War II when his D.S.C. citation, reviewed by the Adjutant General's office, was uprated. He was Staff Sgt. Isadore S. Jachman, of Baltimore, a paratrooper who lost his life in combat at Flamierge, Belgium, on January 4, 1945. Leo Jachman, father of the fallen combat man, received the nation's supreme heroism award at ceremonies last week at Ft. Meade, Md. The presentation was made by Lt. Gen. Leonard T. Gerow, commander of the 2nd Army.

In recording the bestowal of the Medal of Honor on the late Sgt. Jachman, the National Jewish Welfare Board (JWB), which compiled the record of Jewish participation in both world wars and which is now engaged in war records work in connection with the Korean fighting, noted that the late Lt. Raymond Zussman, of Detroit, a tank corps officer, was the other Jewish Medal of Honor recipient. Sgt. Jachman's name appears in Volume II of the JWB publication "American Jews in World War II."

Sgt. Jachman's uprating occurred when Senator O'Connor, of Maryland, learned of his heroism and called the Adjutant General's attention to the valor of heroism the Baltimorean had performed. A review of Sgt. Jachman's deeds was made and the decision to alter his D.S.C. to a Medal of Honor followed. The text of the citation, signed by President Truman follows:

"Sergeant Jachman, Company B, 513th Parachute Infantry, distinguished himself by conspicuous gallantry and intrepidity above and beyond the call of duty, at Flamierge, Belgium on the fourth of January, 1945. When his company was pinned down by enemy artillery, mortar and small-arms fire, two hostile tanks attacked the unit, inflicting heavy casualties. Sergeant Jachman, seeing the desperate plight of his comrades, left his place of cover and, with total disregard for his own safety, dashed across open ground through a hail of fire and, seizing a bazooka from a fallen comrade, advanced on the tanks, which concentrated their fire on him. Firing the weapon alone, he damaged one and forced both to retire. Sergeant Jachman's heroic action, in which he suffered fatal wounds, disrupted the entire enemy attack, reflecting the highest credit upon himself and the Parachute Infantry."

Born in Berlin, Germany, Isador Jachman came to the U.S., with his parents when he was two years old. He was a graduate of Baltimore City College and had spent a year at the University of Baltimore, where he was planning to major in physical education. Immediately after Pearl Harbor, he volunteered for the Army. Attending the ceremonies at Ft. Meade were members of Sgt. Jachman's family, including his mother and his brother, Bernard. The latter just returned from two weeks' duty with the Maryland National Guard at Camp Pickett.

Although tuberculosis in Canada has been pushed down to seventh place on the list of dangerous diseases, it is still the leading cause of death in persons between the ages of 15 and 45. This means that although great strides have been made in TB control it is still a great drain on the nation. Early diagnosis and treatment are the vital points in cutting down our tuberculosis rates.

Crowded, crooked irregular permanent teeth are frequently part of the price that must be paid for the premature loss, through lack of adequate care, of the baby teeth. Don't allow your child to become a "dental cripple" by succumbing to the myth that the baby teeth are of little importance. Those twenty teeth he acquired at thirty months are of even greater importance than are the permanent teeth to the older child.

U. N. Report Says Israel Wanted Peace With Arabs

The Seventh Progress Report of the United Nations Conciliation Commission for Palestine, makes it clear that the Government of Israel was prepared to negotiate a peace settlement with the Arab States, but that replies of the Arab States to the Commission's proposals made it impossible for the Commission to proceed on its peace-making mission.

The Commission reported that on March 29, 1950, it had submitted concrete proposals to the parties for the establishment of a new procedure, combining direct negotiations in mixed committees with mediation by the Commission itself. According to the Commission, the Arab governments replied that they would be prepared to sit with Israel representatives on a mixed committee "to study the implementation of paragraph II of the General Assembly resolution of 11 December 1948 (return of refugees) provided that the Government of Israel declared that it accepted the principle embodied in this paragraph and agreed to its implementation."

As for the Government of Israel, the Commission stated: "The Government of Israel, without requesting concessions or undertakings in advance, declared itself ready to negotiate a peace settlement directly with any Arab state wishing to do so. It asked the Commission to inform it which Arab state or states were ready to negotiate with Israel a settlement of all outstanding issues, whereupon it would communicate to the Commission without delay the names of the members of the Israeli delegation fully empowered to negotiate and conclude such a settlement looking to the establishment of permanent peace."

In a note dated May 30, the report discloses, the Commission "emphasized the inappropriateness of laying down for the initiation of a procedure in conformity with the Assembly's resolution conditions with principles already laid down by that resolution. The note of 30 May stated that all these principles 'must be respected and one of them cannot be singled out for special recognition without impairing the equilibrium of the resolution of 11 December 1948 as a whole'."

However, on June 12 at a meeting with the Commission, the Government of Egypt did not change its position. The Commision reports: "It is clear from the replies of the Arab States that they have not considered sufficient the statement contained in the Commission's note of 11 May, and reiterated in that of 30 May, that the new procedure would be based on the recognition and respect by the parties of all principles contained in the resolution of 11 December 1948, since these principles form a homogeneous whole and could not be separated from one another." Accordingly, the Commission "concluded that it would not serve any useful purpose to continue the exchange of notes on the proposals."

The Commission was established by the terms of the General Assembly resolution of December 11, 1948, and its efforts to bring the parties together since that time have been thwarted by the attitude of the Arab States, says the Israel Office of Information.

From A Palestine Notebook

BY KINGSLEY MARTIN, IN THE NEW STATESMAN AND NATION

(Concluded from last Week)

They demonstrate one strange fact. After two thousand years of Dispersion they are still a people; they believe that at length, after long wandering in the wilderness, they are at home.

They shatter the Gentile picture of the Jew in captivity. Free men, they at once become farmers and manual workers, craftsmen and soldiers: their heads are erect. The Promised Land may look like a last ditch. But of one thing you may be sure. They will live to build the New Jerusalem or die in its defence.

I passed from the modern Jerusalem through the barbed wire that divides it from the old Jerusalem, now part of Jordan, the Kingdom of Abdullah. Here are the Holy Places, the wonderful Mosque of Omar, the rival sites of Calvary, the two tombs of the Resurrection, the Mount of Olives (with one of the loveliest views in the world), the Garden of Gethsemane and the footprint of Christ; here, too, are the Eastern bazaars, well provided with cheap goods from Lancashire and Birmingham, the romantic appeal of handsome Arabs, veiled women and the whole traditional scene beloved by Western visitors.

And from here a car takes you down the steep road to Jericho, which plunges down a hotter and hotter spiral, down to the Dead Sea with herds of camels and a vast camp of Arab refugees; then you climb up the cooler mountain road that leads on to Amman, the clean and attractive little capital of Jordan. Once over the artificial frontier, you ascend (as the guidebooks say) a rocky hillside, passing the Royal Palace on your left to reach (symbolically) the Residence of the British Minister above it. As I passed, the King sat at the top of his palace steps reading the Koran. He is an excellent chess-player, and I wanted to send him a message offering myself as a sacrifice to his superior skill. But I doubted whether the guards with fixed bayonets would understand my message.

The next day I had an hour's talk with King Abdullah. He is a lively and humorous man who understands, I think, more English than he admits. He certainly desires peace with Israel and he is ready, as his actions show, to cook a royal snook at the Arab League. He has courage, and knows, as Israel knows, that peace between them is economically and politically essential. He is not, however, an absolute dictator. He is now, in theory, a constitutional monarch, and, in practice, sufficiently responsible to take some notice of public opinion.

In short, he is strong enough to make peace — after all, he alone of the Arab rulers did well in the war with Israel and has since annexed much valuable territory — but he would run risks in doing so unless the terms sustained the royal prestige. The key, however, lies in London. The British are not, as some Jews believe, determined to prevent the peace; but neither are they actively sponsoring it. And without active encouragement from Britain I am doubtful whether peace can be made. Once again, the Foreign Office fear to do right lest the Arab League should disapprove.

Abdullah's greatest problem, whether it is good politics to say so or not, is the future of those Arabs who fled or were chased out of Israel in the fighting. It seems to me here that the Jews might most reasonably be expected to ease Abdullah's path. In Amman I fell into conversation with several groups of these dispossessed Palestinian Arabs. They seemed not to bear much grudge against the Jews, though those who had lost land in the armistice talked vehemently about getting it back. In one bazaar three Arabs told me in as many minutes, first, that peace between Israel and Jordan was immediately necessary, then that all the Jews must be killed and driven into the sea, and finally that the Russians would swallow up the whole area and make it Communist within the next twelve months.

I believe they all know that they cannot get back the territory they lost in the war that the League launched against the Jews. All around them are thousands of acres, barren and waterless today, but all of them as potentially fertile as the soil that is being so successfully tilled in hundreds of Jewish collective and co-operative farms. The solution surely is to refuse to maintain a state of war along 250 miles of totally artificial frontier, and for the Jews to offer compensation and technical aid to Arab refugees.

The need of peace and the possibilities of the Negev, as it will be developed by the Jews, were both dramatically illustrated to me by a single incident. It was hot as we drove through the parched land that leads to Beersheba. Our driver was disinclined to give lifts, but in the end he stopped to allow a singularly attractive Kibbutz girl, perhaps eighteen years old, to climb in beside him. She was dressed in the regular uniform of open shirt and shorts. She had no baggage.

"Did she come from a Kibbutz in the desert?" "There is no desert," she answered, "it is only deserted." Good for her. Wherever the pipes had brought water, the sandy earth was brown and fertile. Why was it she was able to wander about instead of working? "I've been wounded and in hospital," she said. Wounded? Badly? "Yes, I was shot through the abdomen by an Arab. I shan't be able to work for a year. I'm visiting my Kibbutz." She explained that there were still Arab smugglers and infiltrators, bad characters. Her Kibbutz was on the frontier in a defence position. "We shoot each other like mad dogs," she said.

COUNCIL ANSWERS IRRELIGION CHARGE WITH TEXTBOOK

The American Council of Judaism-sponsored textbook for religious schools will be completed in about six weeks, an official of the Council said. Bernard S. Gradwohl, of Lincoln, Nebraska, chairman of the Council's Religious and Synagogue Committee, said that Rabbi Allan Tarshish, of Charleston, S.C., was "hoping to complete his manuscript within the next month or six weeks."

Rabbi Tarshish is a Reform rabbi who is not a member of the Council. He was originally scheduled to complete the anti-Zionist textbook in June. Gradwohl said that his committee hopes to have some pre-publication copies mimeographed "at that time for experimental use in some interested religious schools during the fall."

The committee was set up at the fifth annual convention in Chicago in April, 1949, in line with a resolution to carry out a "revitalization of Judaism in America." The resolution was adopted partly as the Council's answer to charges that the majority of its members were irreligious and totally unconcerned, in concrete terms, with anything but its fight against Zionism.

Gradwohl, in reporting on the status of the textbook at the sixth convention last April in Cincinnati, said that Rabbi Tarshish had informed him that the book would be a "textbook for Confirmation Classes, for Youth groups, and adult study groups."

There are approximately 1,900 Jews still remaining in Shanghai, according to a report received by Isaac L. Asofsky, executive director of HIAS, the Hebrew Immigrant Aid Society, of New York, from the Shanghai office. Of this number 770 are Middle European refugees who made their way to this Far Eastern port in their flight from persecution in Europe, and the rest are old Jewish residents, of Russian or former Russian nationality. Of the 1,000 Jews resident in Harbin, Manchuria, as of March 3, over 800 have left for Israel. Several hundred Jews still live in Tientsin, China. The Shanghai office still functions in aid of Jews resident in the Far East, and reports that it has been in communication with the Jewish colony in Harbin since contact of that city with the outside world was re-established a few months ago.

Dr. Everett R. Clinchy, president of the National Conference of Christians and Jews at 381 Fourth Avenue, announced that this body will co-operate with the International Council of Religous Education, this year to work out a program to improve intergroup education in family life. Dr. Clinchy said the tentative plans for the joint program include local experimental projects to improve parent and family understanding of the various races, religions and cultures in American life and the preparation of printed material on intergroup living, designed for family use.

Swimmers of a dozen nations gathered round the palatial new pool at Wembley, England. It was the day of the Empire Games swimming event—a day slated for its full share of surprises.

The Canadian swimmers—undefeated by the experts—had trained on apart in the women's events, taking long odds. Most the men's 100 yards free style title to Canada . . . dismayed by four relay victories. The team of 1934 had swept the board for Canada's first Empire swimming triumph!

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our dear daughter and sister, Mrs. Pearl Forcht Israelson, who passed away August 29, 1949 (24th day of Av.)

Dearer to us than words can tell,
Was the daughter and sister we lost and loved so well,
One of the best the world could give.
Your life was unselfish; for others you lived;
Not for what you received but for what you could give.
A wonderful daughter and sister in help and aid,
A tireless worker, loyal and true,
One in a million, dear daughter and sister, were you.

Ever remembered by parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. Forcht; sister, Molly; and brothers, Sidney and Cecil.

In loving memory of dear little Hank (Hersche) Israelson, who passed away August 28, 1948, (24th day of Av). Sadly missed and ever remembered by his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. S. Forcht.

In everlasting memory of our dearly beloved husband and father, Bernard Enushevsky, who passed away August 25th, 1946. Ever remembered by his sorrowing wife and children.

The exodus of Rumanian Jews destined for homes in Israel, will continue at the rate of about 4,000 per month this summer, officials of HIAS, the Hebrew Immigrant Aid Society in Bucharest, who are aiding the emigrants in various ways, reported to the HIAS World Headquarters. HIAS is the only Jewish organization assisting emigrants in Rumania at this time. Emigrants are now being processed for four sailings aboard the SS Transylvania from Constanta this summer. HIAS is providing many Israel-bound immigrants with transportation from Bucharest to the port of embarkation, and makes available to them finances for passport and other documentation fees. In many cases where luggage surpasses the allotments for a single family, HIAS pays for the transportation of 200 pounds of such luggage from Bucharest to Haifa, Israel. Nearly all Israel-bound emigrants from Rumania pass through Bucharest, and because of their destitute condition, require aid before sailing for the new Jewish State.

Three Faiths Join To Offer Peace Plan

Jewish, Protestant and Roman Catholic leaders termed the Leftist-inspired peace signature appeal "spurious" and "camouflage" and said that aggressive policies and actual aggression such as those which embroiled Korea in war are "the greatest menace to world peace."

In their joint statement—the first on an international issue since the end of World War II—which bears signatures of the leaders of the three faiths, they proposed a five-point program for peace. The statement was issued by officers of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America, National Catholic Welfare Conference and the Synagogue Council of America.

In advancing their program, the religious leaders said that "genuine peace requires practical recognition of the fact that not only individuals but nations, states and international society, are subject to the sovereignty of God and to the moral law which comes from God."

"Peace requires of every people," they said, the following:

"1. Renunciation of the use of war of threats of force as an instrument of national policy.

"2. Loyal adherence to the solemn obligations of the United Nations charter for the maintenance of international peace and security and the peaceful settlement of disputes.

"3. Respect for, and observance of, human rights and fundamental freedoms for all.

"4. Participation in positive programs of the United Nations for the common welfare and better standards of life.

"5. Acceptance of International agreements for the effective reduction and regulations of armaments, including atomic weapons, by all nations, through a trustworthy system of international inspection and control."

"We urge all men of good will to support these objectives of a genuine program for peace," the statement said.

Regarding the so-called Stockholm "peace appeal," issued by the Congress of Partisans of Peace in March, 1950, the religious leaders said:

"This spurious peace petition, which has already deceived many well meaning people here and abroad, is a camouflage designed to confuse the free societies and to conceal the aggressive policies revealed in the invasion of Korea. It is these aggressive policies and actual aggression which constitute the greatest menace to world peace."

The appeal criticized by the group calls for outlawry of the atomic bomb as "an instrument of agression and mass murder" without condemning aggression itself, whatever weapons are used. It closely parallel's Soviet proposals in the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission and has been the basis for the Communist "peace" propaganda drive, according to the New York Herald Tribune.

Signatories of the joint statement included the following: Rabbi Bernard J. Bamberger, New York, president, Synagogue Council of America; The Rev. Dr. Samuel McCrea Cavert, New York, general secretary, Federal Council of Churches, and the Right Rev. Frederick G. Hochwalt, Washington, director of the department of education of the National Catholic Welfare Conference.

GIVES T. B. RELIEF GROUP CLEAN BILL

Nathan L. Goldstein, New York State Attorney General, announced that he was moving to vacate the temporary injunction he obtained in September restraining the Jewish Consumptive Relief Society, of Denver, from soliciting funds in the state. His decision followed reorganization of the administration of the society's hospital, which had in the past collected an average of $600,000 a year from citizens of New York State.

"Grounds for the complaint within and outside the organization have now been removed in line with the suggestions I advanced," the Attorney General said, "and the society is once more in position to resume the great medical and charitable work it long performed for the sick of all faiths . . . (it) seems now to be in a position worthy of complete confidence and support."

TO ESTABLISH MUSIC CENTER IN ISRAEL

Finalising a transaction which will culminate in the establishment in Israel of a settlement for Jewish artists and singers, Cantor Myro Glass, Zionist leader of Indianapolis, Indiana, turned over a check of $10,000 to Dr. Harris J. Levine, president of the Jewish National Fund. The sum was donated in the name of the Palestine Symphonic Choir of which Cantor Glass is the chairman.

The $10,000 contribution marks the first installment on a Biblical Music Center which will be located on 200 dunam of land allocated by the Jewish National Fund in Maale Hachamisha, one of Israel's most strategic areas, in the vicinity of the Jewish capital, Jerusalem. The Music Center which is to be named "Asaph", after the choir leader of the Second Temple, will include an amphitheater as well as living accommodations for cantors and musicians. The sponsors of the Center hope to promote the revival of Hebrew music and to make Asaph a center for national festivals.

The negotiations between the National Fund and the Palestine Symphonic Choir for the land tract in Israel were brought to a close by Mendel N. Fisher, executive director of the JNF, during his recent visit to Israel. Among the officers of the Music Center Project are Professor Jacob Weinberg, noted musicologist and composer, and Rabbi James Heller, of Cincinnati, Ohio, Zionist leader.

raise a substantial ransom. At his request, the J. D. C. forwarded $5,000,000 to his account on a day's notice. Brecher didn't know the funds were blocked and could not be spent by Mr. Mayer. The ransom lure was strong enough so that, when word reached Mr. Mayer that the Nazis were preparing trains in Budapest to move their victims to Auschwitz, he was able to have the trains canceled by threatening to call off the negotiations.

Mr. Mayer, who carefully avoided personal publicity, turned his former lace factory in St. Gall, Switzerland, into a headquarters for the 25,000 Jewish refugees who entered Switzerland during the war. He accepted no pay for his work. He resigned from active duties with J. D. C. last January.

munity's organizations so that they undergo the test of public opinion." But we castigate attacks upon the representatives of all Jewish defence agencies as misleading and harmful to the effective defense and support of Jewish rights and Jewish dignity."

The Congress statement made only one reference to the charge that refusal of the Tribune to print its retraction constituted a complete failure of negotiations.

"Despite our urgent requests, the Tribune was unwilling to print these letters in their own columns," Rabbi Berman reported.

Maloney was quick to use the exchange when a Tribune reader wrote in protest. David Osnan sent a copy of his letter, which included a cancellation of his Tribune subscription, to the Sentinel. Osnan also sent a copy of Maloney's reply, in which Maloney said that spokesmen for the four defense agencies "have accepted the view that the Tribune's intentions in printing the article were not evil. Perhaps you would care to get in touch with them."

Around the Home

TOM GARD'S NOTE BOOK

It seems as if most people have a struggle to furnish their first home. We visited newlyweds last weekend and it was almost like reliving our own first few months! They will succeed, though, as first things had been put first and improvisation took care of the rest. One of their best "makeshifts" was a hall table. His parents had modernized an old sideboard by removing the top section—mirror and all. The top shelf and two supports had been left intact; a third leg was placed in the centre at the back and then braces run to the other two legs. It made an ideal hall table for the telephone and hadn't cost a cent. Even the mirror had been resilvered, etched and mounted on half-inch plywood, making an inexpensive hall mirror.

Barrel-Stave Hammock

If you would like a hammock to hang under your favourite tree but must pamper a limited budget, try the idea developed by a neighbour down the street. Holes were bored in old barrel staves and then threaded with half-inch rope. You'll see how it was done by examining the diagram shown. A heavy blanket or old sleeping bag will make the hammock quite comfortable.

Corner Garden Seat

If you wish a garden trellis in a half-pint backyard, don't stick it out in the centre of the lawn like a sore thumb. Arbours and gateways should lead somewhere; high trellises should terminate some line of vision. One of the best ideas I have seen for a small garden combined the trellis with a corner garden seat. It was most attractive and a solid mass of blue morning glories when I last saw it.

I notice some of my perennials are beginning to fall over. In case you haven't suitable flower supports for your garden, here is the type I have been using for years. They are easy to apply and just as easy to store away in the fall.
